COURSE DESCRIPTION

There are few institutions with a greater impact on our daily, lived experiences than the economy. The state of the economy helps to define our general standard of living, our job security, the safety and comfort of the communities in which we live, and even the stability of our political systems. Consequently, it is important that economic development planners in the public sector recognize how to promote development in a way that produces not only growth, but also equitable and socially desirable outcomes. To this end, this course offers an overview of important topics in economic development planning in neighborhoods, towns, and cities.

Key topics for this course include what makes an economic development project successful or unsuccessful, how cities can improve economic, social, and environmental justice through urban planning, urban zoning practices, and effective stakeholder outreach for planners. Taken together, students will be encouraged to view planning as not simply a process through which economic gains are achieved, but one which can help secure equitable distribution of those gains throughout the whole of a community.

EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES

- ☐ knowledge of local economic development challenges and how they can be resolved or remedied
- ☐ recognition of the various opportunities for economic development
- ☐ identify policies that can be used to advance growth, halt economic decline, and mitigate the damage done by that decline when it occurs
- ☐ expand mental-library of development concepts
- ☐ enhance critical thinking, reading comprehension, and writing skills

REQUIRED MATERIALS

There is one required text for this course: Globalization, Planning And Local Economic Development. All other readings will be posted online or hyperlinked in this syllabus.

GRADING SCALE AND BREAKDOWN

A: 92.5-100; A-: 89.5-92.4; B+: 87.5-89.4; B: 82.5-87.4; B-: 79.5-82.4; C+: 77.5-79.4; C: 72.5-77.4; C-: 69.5-72.4; D+: 67.5-69.4; D: 59.5-67.4; F: <= 59.4

Semester Project: The primary project you are assigned for this class is an economic development plan for a city or town of your choosing. This plan will comprise of four stand-alone, five-or-more-page, double-spaced papers, which you will correct, revise, and merge at the end of the semester.

Paper 1 - City and Institutional Profile: For this paper, you will provide a description of the city you've chosen. You should discuss important economic indicators for your city. These may include, but are not necessarily limited to, population statistics and trends, employment and unemployment rates, poverty and income levels, occupational structures, key industries and resource potential, and pre-existing specialization. Also important to discuss in this paper are the key public sector institutions that will participate in or play an important role in the city's economic development, as well as what that participation might look like or what that role might be. 20 Points

Paper 2 - Map/Visuals: Economic development programs are rarely implemented uniformly across a city. Instead, specific areas are targeted for development projects. For this paper, you will map out the areas where you plan to recommend development projects be implemented. You should also describe and justify why you chose those areas. While I encourage you to be as creative as you'd like, I would recommend choosing the locations that would be best for improving the indicators you identified in Paper 1. Do not worry about your city's zoning restrictions when putting together this map (you will address zoning in Paper 4). Also, you do not need to describe specific projects or policies you plan to pursue (save this for Paper 3), but I would encourage starting to brainstorm about them while you put this paper together. 20 Points

Paper 3 - Goal Outline and Policy Recommendation(s): In this paper, you will provide a description of the economic development goals you want your city to achieve in the short and long-term. Next, you will describe the policies and projects that you believe are necessary to achieve those goals. You do not need to provide a comprehensive description of how a policy or project you propose will be achieved and implemented; instead, view this part of the paper as a justification for the policies and projects you believe should be pursued. Remember that not all policies and projects are equal; do your best to highlight which are most important to your economic development plan's success. 20 Points

Paper 4 - Identifying and Overcoming Challenges: Here, you will discuss the potential challenges that may be encountered when trying to implement the policies and projects you proposed in Paper 3. You should also discuss how those challenges could be overcome or mitigated without jeopardizing the achievement of your economic development goals. Special attention should be paid to whether re-zoning will be necessary to achieve your goals and how feasible zoning changes will be (now is the time to compare your city's zoning w/ the map you turned in for Paper 2). Note: You must turn in a visual of your city's zoning map w/ code descriptions the week prior to Paper 4's due date. Failure to turn in this map will make it more difficult for me and your peers to assess the quality of your paper and will result in the loss of points. 20 Points

Finalize the Plan: Revise and combine your previous work based on instructor feedback. In addition to revisions, you should improve the aesthetics of your plan. Examples will be provided for inspiration. After finalizing your plan, you will share it with an assigned colleague for constructive critique/feedback. Note: A significant part of your grade here will be the quality/seriousness of the feedback you provide to your colleague. 20 Points
